der the blanket and found the wind had changed around to s'uth'ard and was blowin' a right stiff gale. Hit didn't take me long to see that the sky was all lit up with a red glare. I could hear the crackle of flames pretty consid'rably close up, and says I to myself: 'I reckon the fire's a-comin' this way, and I'd better see about it.' I'd seen a grood wann varietie fires but I'd seen a good many prairie fires, but when I stood up in the boat, I was sort o' surprised. Hit seemed as if every thing to the s'uth'ard was a-burnin' up, and the flames was sweepin' north faster'n a mple could canter. faster'n a mule could canter.

'I looked back toward the north, and saw I'd a-pulled out of the river a good deal furder 'n I thought I had, and I saw that, in the strange glare that lit up all the little waterways, and I saw that, in the strange glare that lit up all the little waterways, 'twa'n't much use to try to pall back into the river ahead of the rushin' flames. The little pond I had run into was the end of a sort o' pocket, and the tall dry grass stood all around it ten feet high, 'ceptin' the open places on the side where I come in. The roots of the grass was a-growin' in water just deep enough to cover 'em, though 'twas a dry time. In wet weather you could pull a boat right through the tops of the grass, or run a steamboat over it. Well, seein' as how somethin' had got to be done right off, I shoved the skiff into the middle of the pond, stuck down an oar in the mud, and tied her nose to it, close up. Before I'd got her made fast the fire had come so close that the sparks and cinders was nigh-a-most blindin' me, and the wind whirlin' upward with the flame made my ha'r stand on end. Hit seemed as if the whole world was a-goin' up in the flames. Laws! you never seen such a wild sight, and in front of the rushthe flames. Laws! you never seen such a wild sight, and in front of the rushin' fire, sailin' around in the blood-red sky, was herrins, marsh hens, black-birds, cranes and such, all a-squakin' and takin' on, and streakin' it through the tops of the grass was ducks and coots. But 'twa'n't no place for me to be standin' and lookin' on; so I soused

While I was thinkin' this was about the wust I was thinkin' this was about the wust fire I'd ever fell in with in these yer parts, there came a tremenjus crashin' and swishin', louder even than the roar and crackle of the flames, and the water in the shallow little lagoon began to splash and the boat to rock. up my head and peered out. "Gators, by snuckey!" says I to myself. I couldn't hold my eyes open but a second, in the edge of the flame, almost; but tearin' along right under the leapin' tongue of fire was a solid drove of "crators big and little chinked in with 'gators, big and little, chinked in with water moccasins, and they was a-plump-in' into the little pond, which was al-ready a foamin' and bilin' with them that was already in there. I had to get my head under right away, but I could tell pretty well what was goin' on by the commotion in the water and the bobbin' of the boat. All this took place in a good deal less time than it takes me to tell it, you know. Then came a blast of heat that singed the hairs of my blanket, and at the same time a-floppin in the water that seemed like hit was goin to smash the skiff into splinters. Hit seemed as if this lasted spinters. Hit seemed as if this lasted a terrible time, and then the heat began to moderate. But the smoke settled down enough to choke a body, and the commotion in the water kept up. If you are a bettin' man you can bet yer boots I wanted that skiff to hold together. "When the smoke had cleared away

"When the smoke had cleared away so that, after two or three trials, I could keep my head out from under the blanket, I sat up in the skiff; and such a sight! Well, sir, whether you believe me or not, that little pond was plumb full of 'gators and moccasins, and was actually overflot'in' with 'em. They was wedged so thick around my boat that she was h'isted half way out of the water, and I couldn't have got her away any more than if she'd been ketched in a jam of saw-logs. 'Yer's a pretty kettle o'fish,' says I to myself; 'how'm I goin' to get out of hit, with these yer 'gators a fermenting' and these yer 'gators a fermenting' and chawin' at each other, and the moccahim shelter. A POOR WOMAN.

How "Uncle Stead" Managed to Save Cartage Charges.
"Uncle Stead" is what they called a shrewd old gentleman who used to live in Winthrop, a little way out of the village, up the side of the pond, near my blanket in the water, got down in the bottom of the boat and covered myself all up with the wet blanket. Just before I put my head under I got a glimpse of a good-sized critter, a deer or painter, I reckon, goin' by lickety-cut, with the flames just catchin' onto his tail.

"I hadn't been under the blanket more'n a second, seems as if, when the red showed through the blanket, and I Readfield. One of his fellow-citizens

Accordingly, Uncle Stead bought a barrel of flour, a ham, a bucket of sugar, etc., and telling Lovejoy where the woman lived, sent him off on the errand of charity with the good things in his pung.

The President vetoed thirteen more pension bills the other day, and reurned them to the Senate with the judgment of the Congress, and when I have deemed it my duty to disap-prove many of the bills presented, I have hardly regarded my action as a dissent from the conclusions of fhe people's representatives, I have not been insensible to the suggestion which should influence every citizen, generous appreciation of the services of our country's defenders.

In reviewing the pension legislation presented to me, many bills have been approved upon the theory that every doubt should be resolved in favor of the proposed beneficiary. I have not, however, been able to entirely divest myself of the idea that the public monmove in that direction, and my began to settle down to her usual floatin' position. The moccasins cleared out, too, some squirmin' off with the 'gators and others crawlin' up on the warm stubble that the fire had burned over, and in less'n an hour I was alone in my boat, in the little lagoon, in the in my boat, in the little lagoon, in the lagoon of grateful and benevolent designs. Such a man should never find himself side by side on the pension roll with those who have been tempted to attribute their natural ills to which humanity is heir to service in the army. Every relaxation of principle in the granting of pensions invites applications without merit and encourages those who for gain urge honest men to become dishonest. Of course could this be done by a patented system, both it and the descriptive book would have immense sale, although the ditching and tilling in preparing the land was very expensive. The theory was that by this system water was kept in the underdrains and appropriated by the plants when needed. So far, so good. Wellsville, though, is supplied with water through mains which pass not far from this successful "Hill-side Farm," of Hon. (?) A. N. Cole. For many weeks the Water Company sought for the cause of the mysterious waste in their water supply during the last year's drouth, and at last traced it to the tapping of their hydrant by Cole. This accounted not only for the loss of the water but also for the wonderful growth of Mr. Cole's crops. Thus endeth the prosbroposes to furnish the National Captical with a national bark that will be to Washington what Hyde Park is to London, a resort for pleasure, a place where a national exhibition can be held, where there will be room and accommodation for military parades and other national demonstrations. The Senator thinks that it would be a good plan to have a muster and review of our state militia at least once every four years. This is one of the many uses which a national park in Washington will serve.

As was anticipated and predicted in these letters, would be the case, there have been wholesale dismissals, promotions and appointments in the several departments this week. The most numerous changes were made in the Treasury Deparement, and the fewest in the Department of Justice. There are rumors of more changes in the next ten days, and until the month of July passes there will be month of July passes there will be month of July passes there demonted in the district offices. The new Democratic appointees are dyed in the wool bourbons and believe that Democratic administration. The new Democratic administration. 'Mothers' Friend

The time has come at last when the terrible agony incident to this very critical period in a woman's life can be avoided. A distinguished physician, who passed the greatest portion of his life (forty-four years) in this branch of practice, left to child-bearing woman this priceless legacy and life-saying appliance, "THE MOTH-ERS' FRIEND," and to day there are thousands of the best women in our land who, having used this wonderful remedy before confinement, rise up and call his name blessed.

We can prove all we claim for it by living witnesses, and anyone interested can call, or have their husbands do so, at our office, and see the original letters, which we cannot publish.

This remedy is a most wonderful liniment to be used after the first two or three months. Send for our treatise on the Health and Hap-piness of Woman, mailed free, which gives all particulars.
